SEWER ORDINANCE PASSED IN COUNCIL.

Progressive Sanitary Measure Has Little Opposition.

THE FIRE HOUSE BIDS

Are Opened But Council Defers Action Until a Special Meeting Scheduled for Friday—Incidents That Featured the Meeting.

Town Council passed a piece of progressive legislation at its meeting last night when the ordinance prohibiting the maintenance of closets and vaults that are not connected with a sewer, when the property abuts upon a street upon which sewage is provided, was approved with but a single dissenting vote, that of Councilman Frank Friel. Aside from this ordinance no business of great importance was transacted. Action upon the erection of a fire house was deferred until next Friday evening. Much of the time was consumed in wordy arguments of a rather personal nature. Council did not adjourn until 10 o'clock.

The passage of the sewage ordinance was endangered for a time and its fate was in the balance. Councilman Clark read the ordinance to Council and moved its adoption. Councilman Friel objected saying that members of the Ordinance Committee had not had an opportunity to examine the ordinance, but Councilman Clark of that committee called attention to the fact that the committee met last Monday and Friel had the opportunity to attend had he so desired. Friel then kicked because no distance was specified.

"It will work a hardship on some poor citizens," he declared. "Why you might make a man go 300 or 400 feet to tap a sewer."

He did not appear satisfied when told that the only properties affected would be those abutting upon a street or alley which is sewered. When the vote was taken Friel's was the only one against the motion.

Councilman S. E. Brant was in a lonesome mood. He became almost belligerent at one stage of the game when Henry Welke asked either to see the ordinance or see his fellow after explaining he was taxed that sum to tear up a paved street to tap a water line. Brant had done the work and conceived the idea Welke was intimating that perhaps the borough did not get the money. The suburban Socialist voiced a protest against the tax and decided to take the matter up with President Millard at some future time. Burgess Evans broke into the discussion at this point and explained that the ordinance was printed on the back of the permit.

"There is also provision for an inspector at 25 cents an hour which we could charge you, but don't," said the Burgess.

Brant took his cue when Welke said he didn't believe the Burgess could show the ordinance authorizing the collection of the dollar charge.

"I did that work and I got the receipt," roared Brant at Welke. "I've got the receipt now, but I won't give it to you. I paid the dollar to Burgess Evans and I charged it on your bill. You are not here making a kick about the dollar. You just want to kick to hear yourself. You are the man that wanted the water company to run a line clear into your house for nothing. G—d— it, you'd kick for five cents."

President Millard, after vainly attempting to stop Brant's flow of rhetoric, banged the gavel hard at the finish of the oration and other Councilmen prevailed upon Brant to be seated.

Councilman William McCormick and Chairman S. E. Hay of the Street Committee had a verbal run-in over street and sewer matters. The question of damage to M. J. Roland's Gibson avenue property from storm water started the argument. McCormick said he was damaged much worse than Roland and that it would do even greater damage if more water was turned down Murphy avenue. Hay declared the Street Committee hasn't time these days for anything but to remedy the mistakes made while McCormick had charge of the streets. Councilman Brennan also made a flowery speech criticizing the former Democratic administration's methods, which McCormick labeled an "artificial argument."

The question was too complicated for a layman. It appears to be undisturbed that the damage of the Plinacle is a serious proposition and will be a costly one, and something the borough must sooner or later tackle perhaps at considerable expense. A suggestion to extend the dead end of the Gibson avenue sewer until it connects with the main sewer line.

FRENCH CAPITAL SOUGHT TO DEVELOP OHIOPOYLE.

William White of Pittsburg is in Paris Enlisting Investors in Scheme to Use the Falls.

French capital is being sought to develop the Ohio poyle falls as a power proposition. William White of Pittsburg is now in Paris endeavoring to enlist financiers there in the project and it is stated that he is meeting with success. The completion of the deal seems near at hand. A company is being formed in Paris which will take up the development of the falls at Ohio poyle to produce electric power. The proposition is a mammoth enterprise that will require almost unlimited capital, and it is Mr. White's purpose to secure the strongest possible backing. It will be necessary to construct a big storage reservoir in order to insure a steady flow of water throughout the year.

It is understood the Pittsburg man is interested in the recently incorporated Ohio poyle Light, Heat & Power Company, chartered under the laws of this State for the purpose of developing Ohio poyle's water power. Showers Tonight. Local showers tonight or Thursday is the moon weather bulletin.

B. Frank Smith at Dulaney's Cave

Special to The Courier. SMITHFIELD, July 19.—That B. Frank Smith was in the vicinity of Dulaney's Cave yesterday is the statement of John R. Moser, a resident of this place. Moser claims to have seen Smith while picking huckleberries in the vicinity of the cave.

Moser said he had just arisen from a spring, from which he took a drink of water, when he saw Smith a short distance below him, at another spring. Moser spoke to Smith and asked him if his name was not Walters. Smith replied that it was. Moser then asked, pointing to a fence nearby, who owned the land beyond. Smith replied that he did not know.

Those answers convinced Moser that the man was Smith because the land in question belongs to a man named Walters. Moser has known Smith all his life and is satisfied that the man was the fugitive.

Smith was loathe to talk and seemed in a hurry to move on. Moser says Smith seemed more fleshy than when he had last seen him.

John R. Moser is an uncle of Evans Moser, one of the victims of Smith's murderous Winchester.

Waiting for Iron Workers to Come

The structural steel work on the Western Maryland's new line across the Hord bottom is ready to be placed and will be started within the next few days. The structural iron workers from Ohio poyle, who placed the two bridges there in position, will lay the spans across the Pennsylvania tracks just south of town, as well as other structural work to be done.

The McClintock-Marshall Construction Company of Pittsburgh has the bridge contracts. Each of the girders weigh about 45 tons and will be swung in place by a big steam crane.

Italian and Girl Both Sent to Jail

Frank Blumardo, the Italian arrested early yesterday morning for alleged illicit relations with 1 year old Catherine Boyd, was given a hearing yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace W. P. Clark. He was held for court on a statutory charge.

The little girl admitted her delinquency and was also sent to jail. She is charged with incorrigibility. Constable B. Rottler, who appeared as prosecutor in both cases, took them to Uniontown.

HOME FROM CANADA.

F. W. Wright Had Fine Trip Along Georgian Bay.

F. W. Wright of the Wright-Slotzer Company, arrived home last night from a several weeks fishing trip along Georgian Bay, Canada. Mr. Wright and his brother, W. W. Wright of Cleveland, O., were with a fishing club from Cleveland. He reports a very delightful trip and plenty of fish, none of which weighed over three and a half pounds.

Mrs. Wright and sons, Frank and Dana, who during Mr. Wright's absence, visited friends and relatives in Cleveland, and Cudiz, O., also arrived home last night.

Had Foot Amputated. Richard Vorinsky, who has been at the Cottage State hospital since the 20th of last May, had his left foot amputated this afternoon. Vorinsky is a German and is employed in the mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company at Davidson. He was kicked on the foot by a horse and as the result of the injury he lost his foot.

Veterans Meet July 25. A meeting of the executive committee of the Fayette County Veterans' Association will be held Tuesday, July 25, in Uniontown.

Frick Veterans at Picnic Today

A Jolly and well provisioned crowd gathered at the Pennsylvania station at Scottdale this morning, and boarded the special train that is to convey them to Idlewild park, the occasion being the fifth annual picnic of the H. C. Frick Coke Company Veterans' Association.

While there were quite a number of veterans in the gathering, it was a difficult matter to pick them out. They seemed to have left their "veteran" looks and ways behind, and had evidently made up their minds to be of the younger set, for today, at least. The Scottdale train was made up of seven coaches and a baggage car, and stopped at Turf, Youngwood and East Greensburg. A second train, for the accommodation of those in the southern part of the region was made up at Uniontown and stopped at stations between there and Scottdale.

A ball game, dancing and athletics will provide amusement for everybody and a general good time is assured.

RAISING FUNDS FOR CELEBRATION.

Committee Got on the Job Today and Meet With Success.

BIG TIME SEEMS ASSURED

Rousing Meeting Will Be Held Thursday Evening When Further Plans Will Be Considered—Trying Hard to Land Aeroplane Feature.

Prospects today were brighter for a rousing celebration here on August 2 in honor of the Third Class City when at any previous time since the movement was started. There was an enthusiastic meeting last night at which time various plans were discussed and today four subscription papers are being circulated about town for the purpose of raising funds with which to defray the expenses. The finance committee expects to complete the canvass for funds by tomorrow night when a report can be made.

It will not be possible to determine just what attractions can be secured until it is known how much money will be available. The committee would like to have an aeroplane flight as an attraction, believing it would be impossible to secure a better drawing card. Manager Fred Robbins of the Soloson theatre has a man trying to get in touch with one of the aviators, with a view to bringing him here for a flight, although it will not be possible to decide this matter until the financial situation is made clear.

The hotel men are contributing generously towards the celebration. Other business houses are also liberal in their contributions. It was stated today.

Two bands will be engaged for the celebration and possibly three. The committee has also received an offer for an unusually elaborate display of Italian fireworks at a reasonable figure and this feature may be adopted.

The plans for the Tenth Regiment reunion of August 3 have been completed and the success of that day is assured. Between 600 and 700 veterans of the Tenth, with their friends, will attend the reunion this year. The business meetings will be held in the Soloson theatre while the banquet will be held in the Armory. There will be a military parade during the day. Many of the veterans will arrive in time to enjoy the celebration of August 2.

The Bargain Day boomers, who are arranging special sales for August 1, are by no means idle and indications are that there will be three exceptionally busy days in Connellsville next month, which will attract thousands of visitors to town.

STEEL TRADE OF THE WORLD IS EXCEEDINGLY PROSPEROUS.

President Farrell of Steel Corporation Optimistic on the Outlook in This Country in Near Future.

United Press Telegram. NEW YORK, July 19.—The steel trade of the world is exceedingly prosperous, according to J. A. Farrell, President of the steel trust, who returned from the Brussels conference on the Olympia today.

"The outlook in this country is excellent," he said, "and large orders can be expected from abroad in the near future."

Farrell was well pleased with the success in forming a universal steel trust at the Brussels conference. He said that the committee of five from each country, named to arrange for the formation of an international steel and iron association, would be able to report its plans probably within the next six months.

Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Company, was another returning traveler. He confirmed the report that he had closed a contract with the Italian government for large quantities of armour plate. He also said he had bought 25,000,000 tons of Swedish ore for the Bethlehem plant.

HAD PAVING BRICK FOR TOM M'DONALD.

Frank Murphy Wanted Revenge for Being Arrested Last Night.

WAS LOCKED UP ONCE MORE

Officer William Stoner Left the Brick as Evidence and Burgess Evans Collected $5—Pennsylvania Depot No Place For Jags.

It is bad policy to start on the war path after the policeman who happens to arrest you. Frank Murphy, who says he lives in Connellsville, found that out last night and but for the unexpected generosity of Officer William Stoner, would have paid an additional $5 for his offense. Murphy went after the policeman with a brick, but only succeeded in being locked up once more.

About 11 o'clock last night Officer Thomas McDonald seized Murphy smashing a whiskey bottle on the pavement on Main street. The crash of the breaking bottle was said to have been mild compared with the noise Murphy himself was making. Officer McDonald locked the prisoner up.

After a brief time behind the bars, Murphy posted a $5 forfeit with Officer William Stoner and left the building. He returned in a short time later armed with a paving brick weighing nearly 10 pounds. He was seeking the policeman who arrested him. Stoner took the brick from Murphy, gave him back his $5 forfeit and locked him up. The five spot was turned over to Burgess Evans this morning.

The only other prisoner facing Burgess Evans was Henry Nicholson of Marketon. Henry was intoxicated last evening and took six hours. He expected a friend to produce the necessary $3.50, although the Burgess did not share his confidence.

James Conley of Pittsburg chose the Pennsylvania depot as a good place to display his jag. Agent R. B. Blair detected first the odor of stale booze and later the party which carried it. He summoned Special Officer John DeTemple, who placed Conley under arrest. This was yesterday afternoon. Burgess Evans fined Conley $3.50 last evening which he paid.

Brewery Manager Waives Hearing

M. Rorke, manager of the Smithton brewery, waived a hearing yesterday before Justice of the Peace D. M. Bierer, at Uniontown, on charges of illegal liquor selling. It is alleged by County Detective Frank McLaughlin that Rorke's agents solicited orders in Whitsett and vicinity, contrary to the rules of the Fayette county courts.

Rorke was arrested with a number of agents who will probably follow the same course of action.

PAID COSTS. And Settled Case of Disorderly Conduct on Street Car.

Tony Lewis and T. J. Johnson, who were arrested yesterday morning at Dunbar by Constable William Roland of Dunbar township, were given a hearing last evening before Squire Robert McLaughlin of Dunbar township on a charge of disorderly conduct on a West Penn street car last Saturday night.

The information was made by Constable Roland. The case was settled by the defendants paying a fine and costs.

Those going from Connellsville will take No. 48. A great program has been arranged for the day's entertainment by those in charge.

THE RIGHT WORD IN RIGHT PLACE.

One Can Acquire the Knack of Using Correct Language.

COURIER'S DICTIONARY OFFER

Will Go a Long Way Toward Acquiring That Knack and the Cost is Practically Nothing Compared With Value Received.

Have you the magic of the necessary word?

If not, why not? The Daily Courier is at present offering to you the opportunity of obtaining to what degree you will the faculty of free expression of thought through the use of an extensive vocabulary, which has brought fame and fortune to many noted men.

Many fortunes have been made and may be made from words. The Daily Courier in offering to you Webster's New Standard Dictionary Illustrated is supplying you with the mine which, when operated by you, will certainly better your fortune through increasing your ability of expression, adding much to your enjoyment of life, and perhaps bring you the success which you covet.

Thodore Roosevelt recently received $2 a word for a series of articles. Rudyard Kipling has acquired a fund of words that gives him invariably the right word, in the right place; Conan Doyle's powerful descriptive style is merely a structure of words rightly understood and rightly applied, and each of these Englishmen received from 50 cents to $1 a word every time he sells an article.

Rufus Chapt, the most successful jury advocate of his time, refused to enter the court room until he had found a new word for use in that day's speech. You will find many new words between the covers of the book offered you. Senator Ingalls, the most powerful orator of the Fifth Congress, when asked how he acquired his wonderful command of language replied:

"For years I have made a practice of searching the dictionary for words that are new to me, and then using them in conversation and public speaking."

The opportunity of which these men have taken advantage is open to you. Compare your limited success, with your limited vocabulary and you may see your failure in a new light, and realize why you do not have the same chance as the man with the more fluent speech, and apt way of expressing his thought.

Many a man is fettered by the limitations of scanty vocabulary, who might otherwise have been successful. Great ideas and great schemes, avail nothing if they remain locked within a brain through the inability of their author to correctly express them.

If you are hampered by a limited library, get busy and clip coupons for the Webster's New Standard Dictionary Illustrated. Keep it at your elbow in your office or in your home and use it constantly. Do not pass a word you do not understand when you are reading or listening to a sermon, or lecture—look it up in the dictionary and you will find that your fund of general information and your vocabulary will grow apace and you will be worth more to yourself, to your employer and to your friends.

The distribution of dictionaries has proved such a popular idea that the clerks in the Dictionary Department are being kept busy all day long showing the books to those who are anxious to see what they are going to get as soon as they have collected six consecutive coupons. Not one book will be given out until the six days expire. It is expected that tens of coupons will begin to arrive with a rush then. The coupons will be found on Page 2 today.

For increasing the vocabulary the books would be hard to beat, for their convenient size and compactness render all of them ready for reference. No. 1 is a beautiful book bound in limp leather like a Bible No. 2 is half leather binding. No. 3 is bound in plain cloth. There are 1,600 synonyms and antonyms in the dictionary.

Keller Candidate for Sheriff. M. A. Keller will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Sheriff at the coming primaries. The announcement is made in political circles today. Mr. Keller served a term as Sheriff and his record as an official is without a flaw.

A WORD OF WARNING.

Be Careful Whom You Trust With Your Savings.

In the last six months many people, especially people of foreign birth, have entrusted their money to irresponsible parties and by so doing have lost practically every cent of their funds. It is wholly unnecessary to take such chances. There are plenty of good banks, conducted under the supervision of the United States Government, where money is absolutely safe. The First National Bank of Connelville, for instance, established 25 years ago, is solid as a rock. It is not only strong, but it has a department in which all languages are spoken, making the transaction of business easy for foreigners. It issues Foreign Money Orders, buys and sells Foreign currency, sells steamship tickets on all lines and pays 1% interest on Savings Accounts.

BUT ONE FLAG

For United States and Canada Governor Osborne's Prediction.
DITROIT, Mich., July 19.—(Special.)—With only 150 members present, the National Indian Association opened the second day of its twenty-sixth annual convention here today. Yesterday was devoted to the speeches of a number of prominent men, including Governor Osborne and Hon. P. F. Sutherland, judge of the High Court of Justice of the Province of Ontario. Governor Osborne declared that there would soon be but one flag flying over the United States and Canada. Judge Sutherland, on the other hand, in referring to this portion of the Governor's speech, said there was no thought of annexation in the minds of the Canadians.

BIG PICNIC TOMORROW.

SEEING A JOKE.

It Depends on the Brand of Humor to Which One is Accustomed.
Foreigners, as a rule, do not understand our wit and humor. Sir Alfred Harmsworth once remarked to me, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, that American humor was coarse and sometimes brutal. Mark Twain and Finley Peter Dunne are the only American humorists who are accepted by Englishmen. On the other hand, we do not appreciate the humor of Punch, the Englishman's delight. I have seen an Englishman laugh heartily over a joke in Punch that I couldn't see any point to until it was explained to me, and no doubt that gentleman considered me as dense as we consider them when we tell them a funny story and get a sort of pained look, rather mystifying to be sure, instead of the laugh which was expected. It is the local application of the joke that counts the world over. The funniest thing I ever saw was the charge a yearling Hereford bull made at a barbed wire fence in the Texas Panhandle. He struck the fence full tilt, and the rebound caused him to turn a complete back somersault. He landed on his hoofs all right, and there he stood all straddled out with a look of astonishment on his face that was almost human. It was so ludicrous that I lay down in the mesquite grass, and rolled over in spasms of merriment. I began to bawl like a whipped child, turned tail and ran as from a banister. I was at dinner in a Bradford club and told about it, expecting to get a laugh, but all I got was this from Hon. Smith Feather, mayor of that York-shire city:
"By Jove, I didn't know those wire fences were so strong. It's a jolly good thing the poor brute wasn't injured."

NAUGHTY CHOIR BOY.

Disobeyed Orders and Got Beyond Depth in the Cheat.
MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 19.—(Special.)—This morning a party of twenty-five choir boys from Calvary Episcopal Church, of East Liberty, Pittsburgh, came here on their way to Mr. Chairman for their summer vacation. They were taken to the resort on the Cheat river in a hay wagon about an hour after their arrival one of the smaller boys, Jimmy Ford, disobeyed orders by going lathering before hours. He swam on his back out into the river and started back when he gave out. He was sinking for the second time when Norman Doyle, a larger boy, went to his rescue. Doyle could not swim but he waded out in as far as safety would permit and was able to catch Ford by the hair and brought him to shore.
As a punishment to Ford for disobeying orders he will not be allowed in the water until Friday. Doyle is the hero of the camp.

Tom Letters Evidence Used

United Press Telegram.
ERIE, Pa., July 19.—Patched up letters furnished the chief evidence for the government in the trial in progress here of the officials of the Perkins detective agency of Pittsburgh, charged with having sent him-killing letters through the mails. The government contends that the letters received by millionaire Charles Egan, demanding $50,000 under penalty of having his home destroyed, were written by Perkins operatives to secure business for the agency.
The Tom letters were submitted and the government called witnesses today to prove that the grade of paper was sold by a local druggist and that a box of it was bought by the men now on trial. Mrs. Strong, wife of the millionaire, described the description of the manuscript.

"Tama Jim" Balks as Wiley Goat

United Press Telegram.
WASHINGTON, July 19.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson does not propose to be sacrificed as the "Wiley goat." If President Taft wants Tama Jim to make a recommendation of his own in the controversy involving Dr. Wiley, expecting thereby to shift all the responsibility to the Secretary of Agriculture, he is likely to be disappointed.
Instead of concurring in the recommendation of Attorney General Wickham that Dr. Wiley be dismissed from the government service, Wilson, it is reported today, will suggest that he be reprimanded for irregularities in the employment of Dr. Ruby.

Penrose Back; Nearing Finish

United Press Telegram.
WASHINGTON, July 19.—With Senator Penrose, Rep., Pa., back on the job today, the Senate entered upon the home stretch of its consideration of the Canadian reciprocity pact. Only three more days remain before the final vote will be taken.
Referring to the reciprocity agreement as the corner stone of a new tariff system which will contain honest protective duties and which will put an end forever to unnecessary and excessive duties, Senator Brown, Rep., Neb., today urged its adoption by the Senate.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon." Mrs. S. M. Mullen, 228 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.
Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, halfhearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?
For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.
If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, JULY 19, 1911.

A NEW CITY HALL; NOT A NEW FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Town Council received bids last night for the erection of a building devoted to the needs of the fire department. The contract was not let for the reason that there is some doubt as to the legal right of the borough authorities to create any more indebtedness without a vote of the people. This question will be treated separately.

However it may be, it is certain that the town needs proper headquarters for its fire department. It also needs a proper City Hall for the accommodation of its third class city officials. The present City Hall is not suited for these purposes. City government, which Connellsville takes on next December, means that there must be provided offices for Mayor, Controller, City Treasurer and City Engineer, and Council Chambers for Select and Common Councils.

The present City Hall is not suited to this purpose but it is capable of being transformed into a fire department headquarters and a city police station with little extra expense.

The proper thing for the city authorities to do, therefore, is to build a new and modern and more architecturally beautiful City Hall on the borough lot facing the new Postoffice building, and to that end proceed at once to remove all obstacles to a proper bond issue for this purpose.

Let us have a new City Hall of the right size, built on the right lines and at the right time, and let the old one-cop building be devoted to lesser things.

SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN EXPENSES.

The United States Senate has not yet consented to the proposed amendment to the Constitution providing for the election of Senators by the people instead of by the legislatures, and there are many conservative citizens who approve the present attitude of the higher branch of Congress, who believe in the wisdom of the fathers of the Constitution, who have serious doubts as to the propriety of all brands of Progressivism.

But the Senate has not hesitated to pass without a dissenting vote the most drastic campaign publicity legislation ever enacted in this country. The important features of this law are as follows:

No candidate for the Senate or House shall spend in the election more than a sum equal to the value of each vote in his district or State.
No Senatorial candidate shall spend a total of more than $10,000 in the primary and general election and a candidate for the House shall spend more than $5,000.
Publicity must be given to all primary campaign contributions and expenditures.

All general election expenses must be made public before the election, beginning 15 days before election, and making publication each six days until election.
All promises of political jobs must be made public. The bill further makes it illegal to promise political places in order to secure election support, or to aid in influencing the election of any member of a State Legislature.

This bill ought to be a sufficient answer to the demands of passion and precipitate Progressives who would dig up the foundations of the republic in a vain endeavor to remedy evils more or less imaginary and always capable of cure by the old-fashioned allopathic home treatment.

A PROGRESSIVE SANITARY MEASURE.

The Town Council did not do a great amount of business last night, but what it did do was good. It passed the ordinance requiring all closets on properties within easy reach of the sewer system to connect with that system and thereby eliminate themselves as public nuisances.

The ordinance is wise and timely; in fact, it has been long overdue. It should have been passed at the same time the sewer system was installed. The borough spent thousands of dollars for the primary purpose of establishing better sanitary conditions within the borough limits, and the authorities then permitted the cruel and savage menace of the outdoor closet, cleaned not according to the requirements of the health department, but only when it suited the owner, which was seldom.

There is a disposition to ridicule the objections of modern science to certain conditions because our forefathers did not practice them, but the fact is overlooked that the villages have become cities; that the communities are more crowded; that the streams run more sluggish and defiled; that the air is more polluted by the dust and smoke of industry; that the waste matter has become bigger and more burdensome; and that conditions, which were once not worthy of consideration, have become a menace to the community unless properly regulated. The Town Council is Progressive.

Councillor McCormick has discovered that some Republican speeches are "Artificial Arguments." There was a time in the history of the Town Council of Connellsville when Republican speeches were highly artificial arguments. They were so artificial that they made not the slightest impression upon the Democratic majority, while at the same time a speech by Councillor "Bill" McCormick was the law and the gospel, the solid shot that hit the bullseye every time, the real thing, the thing that counted.

The Artificial Argument as the North Pole is from the Equator.

The Pinnacle sewage is reported to be embarking in the trough of the authorities. It ought not to be taken from a good source. It comes from on high.

The Town Council was something of a debating society last night.

The Borough Engineer reports that some buildings are on the streets. This is probably the fault of the engineers. Buildings seem to be aggressive. We often hear that they have sat down on the sidewalk, but we never hear of the sidewalk coming out on the front porch of a private residence.

The Town Council was a trifling reduction last night, but it wasn't the fault of the Councilors.

The Town Council has not inaugurated sidewalk reform any too soon. The Street Committee ought to make a thorough inspection of the whole city and send out notices accordingly.

Influenza has attacked the horses of the Connellsville coke region. Life is just one thing after another with both horses and humans.

The Democrats in Congress are reported to have a very earnest dislike to their association with Republican renegades in the matter of the Tariff. The reason is obvious. It is an unholy alliance, and both contracting parties displease and distrust each other.

A New York Magistrate has decided that ten days is the legal limit of a mother-in-law's visit. That magistrate must lead an unhappy domestic life.

Why is H. Why? Because the Town Council needs excitement occasionally.

Somerset county is getting her "sheep" of the State road appropriations. The Somerset county stationers were never unenterprising.

The J. C. Frick Coke Company is invading Washington county. There is nothing left in the Connellsville region to buy.

The State might start a game preserve in Springfield or Stewart townships. They have the rocks and hills the woods and hills.

The Frick Veterans are fighting their annual campaign against Bull Cuts today. The result will be a victory. The Veterans always win in these battles.

The Borough of South Connellsville is not yet.

The people who have been sighing for the mountains and the shore are renting easier now that the thermometer has climbed down from its altitudinous attitude.

Frank Smith is still being seen in various places in and about Fayette county, but the Sheriff has thus far been unable to find him.

Typhoid and diphtheria threaten Connellsville. The Health Officer should be vigilant.

THE FALL OF TROY

By Isaac of Yukon.

Associated Press reports of the fall of Troy which have been coming in irregularly for the past 4,000 years are conflicting and somewhat rusty.

The Trojan was killed about only six months but when the newspaper reporters got hold of it, they extended the time ten years.

Menelaus the King of Sparta, had married into a very wealthy family whose ancestors came over in the old Mayflower. Mrs. Helen Menelaus was the most beautiful woman who sat in a rocker and bowed a Spartan lichen who was a 31-degree society lady. When her husband was away killing off barbarians she Helen was at home on the receiving line. Helen usually wore out seven pairs a year where she stood when receiving guests.

One time when Menelaus was away on a head cracking war young Hill Paris, the best looking son of Priam, King of Troy, climbed into one of the receptions given at Sparta. Paris was one of those fellows who could make himself at home from the word go. He was so polished in his manner that no one had nerve to tell him that his absence was desired.

Paris hung around for several months and at last all Sparta was shocked to learn that Helen and the Trojan dago had eloped. Menelaus was informed of the act and came home in a rage. He started to raise an army to dismantle Troy and soon was assisted by Achilles, Ulysses, Ajax and Agamemnon, his brother. Off they went, a hundred thousand strong and twelve hundred gunboats. When this body of soldiers landed upon the plains of Troy they were met by just as good a skull crusher under Hector and Aeneas as they were. Achilles and Agamemnon quarrelled over the amount of free advertising they were getting and this held the war back five years.

The siege of Troy lasted ten years and during all this time the wires to the outside world were cut. The R. P. D. lines were out of jobs, the beer agents could not get a case out of the Trojan independent brewery stockade and the summer picnic theatres became stockades. Trojan editors starved by the score because rural subscribers who usually paid with potatoes, cabbage, sweet corn, bacon and squashes could not remit.

Crafty Ulysses now steps to the front and says: "Here, boys, you can't kill off the Trojans by main strength and awkwardness. We'll work a shell game on them. We'll construct a wooden horse and a lot of us will get inside while others will roll it up in the gates of Troy. Our army can then pretend they are abandoning the siege and the Trojans, who had the gate wide open, will drop the gates of the hinges and start the fire throughout the city."

The best reports are to the effect that this was done. Ulysses and his men allowed the Spartans in and in one night the city was burned and destroyed. Menelaus gets a drive at Paris and Helen is abandoned by her husband and has to hunt a job in a loby factory. Priam is killed but Aeneas is left to give the Latin progeny, the Alban fathers and the walls of jolly Rome a whirl.

The Grecian heroes on their return had lots of domestic trouble and law suits.

Agamemnon was killed by his wife, Clytemnestra, who had married Achilles and Ulysses had to kill off a score of society germs who wanted to marry his wife. Penelope, the trouble was never half reported, for whenever a yellowish writer wrote in Ulysses for facts, he just emptied his automatic coil into him and reports quit coming in.

neels with the one at Main street was referred to the Sewer Committee.

The request of John Franks for a certificate approving the property line along Cottage Avenue brought forth a protest from Borough Engineer J. B. Hogg and resulted in the Street Committee being directed to determine whether the expense of a survey of the street is justified. According to the Borough Engineer, the far end of the Cottage State Hospital wall is the only point on the street that does not encroach upon the sidewalk.

George Fuehrer's request for the vacation of an alley 120 feet long met with some opposition. It was referred to the Street Committee. Councilman Kooser suggested that if the alley is vacated, the property owners benefited thereby should pay something to the borough for the privilege.

Fuehrer claims the alley is only of use to the two owners who wish it vacated. It runs into an alley back of Morris Avenue, on the West Side.

Under the head of finances a resolution was passed applying $1,500.00 of the $1,800 owing Borough Engineer J. B. Hogg to his taxes of that figure.

The matter of a bridge on Hill street was referred to the Borough Engineer for an estimate. Chairman Hay of the Street Committee thought $250 or $300 would do but tried placed the figure at $1,000. The property owners along Sycamore street will be directed to lay sidewalks at once. This resolution was passed upon petition of residents of that thoroughfare who save non-resident owners, holding the lots for speculative purposes, decline to make these improvements.

The Johnston Avenue retaining wall will not be built for some time yet. The clerk was directed to return the certified checks on hand, reject all bids and advertise for new estimates.

P. Bufano, agent for a Water Street property near the Pennsylvania bridge, will be notified to have the owner lay a new sidewalk immediately to replace a badly battered one that is an alleged menace to pedestrian traffic.

The grading of Arch street, relating of a pavement for Trinity Lutheran church and laying John Duggan's sidewalk on Eighth street all died natural deaths for want of motions. The position of W. J. Higgs for the extension of the Vine street sewer was referred to the Sewer Committee.

Bids were opened for the new fire house but action will not be taken until the special meeting, Friday evening. The Connellsville Construction Company bid $11,955. The Keystone Planning Mill Company asked $11,800, but specified additional sums for extra excavations and masonry. Connellsville Planning Mill Company wanted $12,400 and Fayette Lumber Company $12,911.96.

Grades were established as recommended by the Borough Engineer and Street Committee on Sixth and Tenth streets and Lisenring and Marietta avenues, West Side. Action on the Green street grade was deferred until later because of an objection by James Ruth.

NEW COLLECTOR FOR SCOTSDALE.

W. S. Wiley Selected to Look
After the School Taxes.

MR. MILLER QUITS THE JOB

Could Not Agree on Salary Nor on Settlement, the New School Code,
the Directors Insisting, Stating Their Duty in This.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, July 19.—Through adherence to the provisions of the new School Code principally the Board of Education of Scottdale will have a new tax collector. W. Sampson Wiley will collect the taxes of the school district in place of H. D. McMillan who will continue to collect the State, County and Borough tax. The change in collectors came about at the meeting of the Board held last night. It was the occasion of the presentation from the collector of his list of exemptions and these were gone over, and with but two exceptions allowed by the board, unanimously, on the two exceptions it being suggested he try to secure and if these were not secured they would go into the general list of exemptions. The duplicate for settlement showed a balance of $900 and the board, according to their interpretation of the School Code insisted that a complete settlement be made. This they said the Board's attorney looked upon as necessary. The code also states that a collector cannot be elected or appointed by the Board to collect unless he has secured up for the year previous Collector McMillan argued that the bond he gave in Greensburg, covering everything including the school taxes, and for the sum of $50,000 covered the balance, even if he did not have a bond for $20,000 to the school board beside.

There was a full discussion of the matter and it was suggested among other things that a note be given for the balance as the board thought that the tax collector could protect himself then. He insisted that he would lose his power of collector by giving such a note, placing the tax owed as a common debt. The board did not feel that they could, under what they looked upon as clear statements of law, assume the responsibility of the balance and also disregard the law. Some one said that they did not think the collector should burden himself by carrying his friends and then ask the board to carry him. Mr. McMillan said that if the board would give the job to someone else they were welcome to do so. He continued that the collectorship at the two per cent rate recently fixed by the Board is a losing proposition. He continued that with the discount period removed and a lower millage rate two per cent runs quite short of what he has always earned before on this. He pointed out that while he would have the board pay for the first notices sent out, the second notices are due and must be enclosed in envelopes with first class postage. The things and furnishing an extra bond, to his mind, made the collecting of the school tax a place he did not want. President Percy said that speaking for the members of the board they all wanted Mr. McMillan to continue the collecting. The President concluded by saying that not until the board had the balance of the 1910 taxes settled for completely as demanded by the Code could they ask Mr. McMillan to collect this year's taxes.

The collector said that the matter ended there, that he would not take the job, because the worry and the loss of money were not worth it. With that he left the room.

The board discussed the matter sometime longer and there was a strong disposition to make the salary paid the same as he had been getting, as nearly as it could be figured, but every member present was convinced that the law on the settlement was correct. No other way of settlement but by exonerations, liens or payment was suggested.

Mr. McMillan had spoken to some of the directors that he would not collect for the two per cent, and the applications of J. S. Cook and W. S. Wiley for the collectorship were read. Each of them are experienced business men. There was some more discussion of the matter, the Board being very loath from their experiences to lose the old collector, but feeling that there was no alternative under the law. The applicants were satisfactory even in every way and it was moved the board proceed to the election of a collector. The first vote was J. S. Cook, J. L. Reynolds, Dr. J. P. Strickler, D. L. Sherrick, J. P. Owens and President H. P. Percy voting for Mr. Wiley and Dr. G. I. Markie and Secretary O. L. Hess for Mr. Cook. There was some more discussion and three more ballots were taken each one the same except the last when all voted for Mr. Wiley.

The board decided not to have any medical inspection this year, to buy a dog and staff for the buildings, and to insist that all acceptance from teachers of their oaths be in the hands of the secretary by August 15 or the place declared vacant. This does not apply to Miss Myrtle Herbert who is traveling in Europe this summer.

Tona Vita Tonic That Builds Up

No other preparation has ever been sold in America for which there is such a tremendous demand, as "Tona Vita." The medicine was unknown in this country until a few months ago, and today the sale of the tonic is so large that it has been impossible to prepare it fast enough to supply the sudden and great demand. Druggists from all over the country are sending in wires, about as follows:

"Tush more 'Tona Vita' Last shipment all gone. Sale tremendous." "No medicine could be so tremendously successful unless it had a mission to accomplish and was accomplishing that mission. 'Tona Vita' is accomplishing its mission. It is making tired, debilitated, nervous men and women, happier, healthier and better prepared to cope with life."

Nervous debility is the curse of this age. It is produced by the strain of modern life. The symptoms of disease are little vitality or ambition; tired, dragging feeling of both mind and body; nervousness and depression of spirits; stomach and liver trouble, constipation, headaches, poor circulation, and susceptibility to coughs and colds. "Tona Vita" is relieving thousands of this miserable condition. It will positively do this, where there is not some serious organic trouble, in a remarkably short time. The very first week brings improvement, and each following dose adds health and strength. The tonic must prove satisfactory or the price is returned by our recognized agent. Don't drag around, half dead, any longer. What "Tona Vita" is doing for thousands, it will do for you.

Lee's Rhubarb Laxative, 'the' most efficient preparation, is the finest family laxative in the world. The natural medicinal qualities of rhubarb—nature's purest and best laxative, are obtained in this medicine. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative will not harm the weakest condition and is therefore ideal for children. It is very pleasant to taste. A. A. Clark has the agency in Connelville for these two great preparations.

GAME PRESERVES

Are to Be Located in Either Somerset or Westmoreland.

LEAHRSBURG, Pa., July 19.—The State Game Commission will establish two new game preserves within a short time, one in Perry county, and one in either Somerset or Westmoreland county. This is the result of the inspection of State forestry reserves made during the last week by State Game Commissioners John Phillips, Charles K. Penrose and W. B. McCaleb with Secretary Joseph Kalkfus.

The commission now has three preserves, one in Franklin, one in Center and another in Crawford county. It is the idea to establish two more and maintain the rest out of the $51,000 appropriation available. The site in Perry county is in Toboyne township, in the extreme southern end, in what is known as the Pennypacker forestry preserve. The western preserve will be located in the Edwin S. Stuart preserve, the last one to be established and named for the recent governor.

The plan is to propagate deer in these southern preserves as well as quail and wild turkeys. The turkeys will be brought from Mexico if the plans of Game Commissioner Phillips can be worked out without too great expense. The commission established the former preserves at a low cost and it is believed that the new ones can be handled. They will be closed at all times and adapted for game to breed. A wire will be strung about each tract and notices posted while game wardens, who will be in charge of propagation, will watch them.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR MINERS.

Greene County Coal Deal. A deal was closed Saturday in which H. L. Dunlap, of Waynesburg, purchased 100 acres of coal land in Center township, Greene county, from D. L. Headlee, A. J. Dye and Frank W. McElhannon, all of Waynesburg, who purchased the coal about a year ago from Harry Taylor and Charles Shirk at $145 per acre. The price paid by Mr. Dunlap was $175 per acre. The coal is underlying the farm of James Church.

U. S. STEEL TO DEVELOP NEW TRACT

Of Coal Which Was Recently Purchased on Monongahela.

COKE OVENS FOR DUNLEVY

Engineers of the H. G. Frick Coke Company Are Making Survey's Preliminary to the Development. Eight Thousand Acres in Field.

CHARLOTTE, Pa., July 19.—With engineers on the ground making surveys of a large tract of land in Talbotfield and adjoining townships, the biggest development in years of Western Pennsylvania coal land for both coking and shipping purposes is indicated.

The developments, centering around Charlotte will be made by the United States Steel Corporation, with which the H. G. Frick Coke Company is allied. In the tract to be developed there are 3,200 acres lying north and southwest of Charlotte and bounding the Vesta Coal Company's holdings. It is said that the holdings, much of which was recently acquired, will extend back to Pigeon creek. It underlies either the whole or part of 13 farms.

The engineers are surveying the crop line. Most of the coal in that formerly held by the River Coal combine and purchased years ago from it. The deal for the United States Steel Corporation was put through by the Frick company.

Two openings are to be made, it is stated, and it is probable that for one the present Redford mine will answer. This mine has been closed down for some time. The other opening, it is said, will be at Beechwood. The Redford opening will be south and the other opening will be to the north.

While facilities will be provided for either rail or river shipments, it is said, considerable of the coal will be used for coking purposes. It is the intention to build coke ovens in the vicinity of Dunlevy and coke much of the coal. Most of the Frick mines are in the vicinity of Uniontown, but the coal of that section can well be used for coking purposes only. Nearly all the coal opening on the Monongahela river in the fourth pool is good for both coking and steam purposes. The farms from under which most of the coal will be taken are: The Moffitt Krepps, Ward heirs, Alexander Carson, Thomas Allman, Henry Rider, Simon Rider, John Phyle, John W. Carson, Theodore Spahr, Lot Winnet, Milton Winnet and parts of the farms of Ada Winnet and the Lutes heirs.

B. & O. Minutes Praise Gen. Koontz

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, July 19.—The following extract from the minutes of a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Pittsburgh & Connelville Railroad Company, in Pittsburgh, has been received here:

"The board of directors record with deep regret the death on July 1, 1911, of General William Henry Koontz, a director of this company, since April 4, 1870.

"During the thirty-five years of service on this board he had been unwavering in his attention to the duties devolving upon him, and continually gave evidence of his deep and abiding interest in the progress and welfare of the company, and his wide legal knowledge was frequently availed of in solving the problems confronting it.

"He was kindly and courteous at all times, possessed an inexhaustible fund of anecdote, and was most companionable. We mourn his loss and that we shall see his face amongst us no more."

While it will not be news to the legal profession that John G. Ogle, Esq., has been retained as general counsel by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company for Somerset county, the fact that he will continue to represent the B. & O. here will be gratifying to the entire county.

The firm of Koontz & Ogle, which was dissolved by the recent death of the senior partner, had been general counsel for the B. & O. and subsidiary interests here for many years, and the retention of Mr. Ogle, who has long been regarded as an able member of the bar, is but the natural sequence.

"About three years ago I was attacked with a very severe itching and burning all over my body and finally my skin broke out in large scales. The itching was so bad that I was unable to sleep. I tried many remedies but nothing helped. I was advised to go to the doctor. He told me to use Cuticura. I did so and in a few days the itching and burning stopped. In about one week my scales fell off and my skin was clear. I am now well and happy. I have saved a few hundred dollars. (Signed) R. D. Dutton, 621, Anklerbucker Ave., Brooklyn, N. A BIG GATHERING OF COAL MINERS

Is Expected at Rescue Work
Exhibition at Forbes Field.

PRESIDENT TAFT COMING

According to Present Plans and a Splendid Program Has Been Arranged by the Federal Mine Bureau in Charge of Exhibition.

Arrangements have been perfected for the first annual national first aid field meet in Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, October 27. It will be conducted under the auspices of the Bureau of Mines and the Pittsburgh Coal Operators' Association, with the co-operation of the American Red Cross.

It is expected that more than 30,000 miners and operators will be present.
Teams from all over the country are expected to compete in the demonstration of first aid to the injured and show their skill in rescue work.

President William H. Taft has promised to be present and distribute the prizes to the winning teams. The exhibitions will be held in the morning of October 27. During the forenoon miners will parade from Forbes Field to the shaft at Water street to witness the United States marine parade on the river, which will be held immediately after the miners' parade.

Plans had been made for holding this demonstration on September 10, but owing to the pressure of official duties President Taft found it impossible to be in Pittsburgh on that date.
He signified his ability to be there on October 27, and the date has been changed to agree with his wishes.

Gov. John K. Tener has also stated his willingness to attend this demonstration, and both Mr. Taft and he will address the miners at Forbes Field as they form in line to march to the shaft. Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher will also address the miners.

The morning program will consist of demonstrations of first aid to the injured and rescue work.

A small mine will be built in the field and every effort will be made to make it look as natural as possible.
When the mine explodes the rescue parties will come on the scene, and the company showing the most skill in rescue work will be presented with a prize.

Each of these companies is composed of five men who represent the mine in which they are employed.
None but mine workers will be permitted to compete.

It has been estimated that 20,000 miners have been killed in the last 20 years and in order to give the public an idea of the vast number who have lost their lives in the mines an award of $2 in the parade will be labeled.

On October 27, the day preceding the national mine safety demonstration, tests will be conducted at the Bureau of Mines experiment station in Pittsburgh and at the experimental mine at Wallston Station, a short distance from Pittsburgh. The demonstrations at the latter place will consist of the actual blowing up of the mine and rescue work for the benefit of operators, mine superintendents and other officials.

Motion pictures will be taken of the demonstrations on both October 26 and 27.

FEAR SON LOST LIFE.

Parents of Joseph D. Robbins Think
Young Man Burned.

GREENSBORO, July 19.—(Special.)
Fears are entertained by the family of Joseph D. Robbins, son of Joseph Robbins of Robbins Station, and one of the wealthiest men in the county, that the young man lost his life in the forest fire which destroyed Forestville, Ont.
Young Robbins was in that vicinity recently and all efforts to locate him have been fruitless. His Congressman
E. E. Robbins, a brother, will leave Tuesday in an effort to locate him unless word is received by that time.

The Oil Bird.

One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "oil bird," or guacharo. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The natives melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter.
The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

DOWNING STREET, LONDON.

It Bears the Name of a Clever Man
From Massachusetts.

Downing street, London, where are the British colonial and foreign offices and the official residence of the first lord of the treasury and where cabinet councils are held, perpetuates the name of a clever man from Massachusetts.
Those were the days before the Fourth of July had any significance in American annals, and George Downing, the first scholar in the first public school in Massachusetts and the first graduate sent out by Harvard college, came to England and became a chaplain in Cromwell's army.

By a remarkable stroke of fortune
he was sent to represent England at The Hague when Europe was trembling before Oliver, and during three distinct crises in England's history he held the office of British ambassador at the Dutch court. He was as popular or as clever under the Merry Monarch as under the protector and the commonwealth, and it came to pass in the reign of Charles II. that the man from Massachusetts was granted a great tract of land at Westminster, where he built huge mansions and laid out Downing street.

To this day Downing's street is Downing street still, and, though George Downing is forgotten, there is no name in the British empire which is more familiar to us than his.—St.
James' Gazette.

GREEN TURTLES.

The Youngsters Have a Perilous Time
After Being Hatched.

Concerning the great turtles of the southwest Indian ocean a traveler says: "The chelonian, or green turtle (Chelone mydas), is an animal of considerable economic importance to the islands, for it still occurs in the vast herds which are so often described by early voyagers in the tropics.
There appear to be two distinct groups
—one resident and small in numbers, the other migratory and visiting the islands to breed in numbers impossible to estimate."

"The latter arrives in December, and from then to April the sea seems alive with turtles. The females seek the small sand beaches and then ascend them with the rising tide, pushing themselves laboriously above high tide mark. Holes are then dug in the sand by means of the fore flippers until a satisfactory one is obtained, and the eggs, 200 in number, are buried, the turtle returning to sea immediately.

"After forty days the eggs hatch almost simultaneously, and the young turtles dig their way up out of the sand and go down to the sea in a long procession, in the course of which they offer an easy prey to their enemies, the frigate birds and herons. Once in the sea, sharks and other large fish eat them, and only 10 per cent reach maturity."—Chicago News.

A Strong Recommendation.

"We are not taking on any new traveling men just now," the safe manufacturer said. "Business is rather dull in our line."

"Well, if you need one let me know," said the applicant for a job. "I'd rather sell your safe than any there is in the market. It's the best."

"Are you an expert?"
"Yes, sir. I know all there is to be known about safes."

"Ever sent in them?"
"No, sir."

"Ever work in a factory?"
"No, sir."

"How do you know ours is the best?"

"Because it takes longest to break into it."

"How do you know that?"

"I'm a reformed burglar."

"He got the job.—Chicago Tribune."

An Immense Flower.

The largest of all the flowers of the world is said to be the rafflesia, a native of Sumatra, so called after Sir Stanford Raffles. This immense flower is composed of five round petals of a brilliant color, each measuring a foot across. These are covered with numerous irregular yellowish white swellings. The petals surround a cup nearly a foot wide, the margin of which bears the stamens. The cup of the rafflesia is filled with a fleshy disk, the upper surface of which is covered with projections like miniature corn cobs. The cup when free from its contents will hold about twelve pints. The flower weighs about fifteen pounds and is very thick, the petals being three-quarters of an inch thick.—Scientific American.

were employed for drinking cups by royal personages, the notion being that poison put into them would show itself by bubbling. There may have been some truth in the idea, inasmuch as many of the ancient poisons were acids, and these acids would decompose the horny material very quickly.

CHAPTER III.

Warburton had forgotten nothing. Coast walked out of Sing Sing to enter his own car, his departure so contrived and timed that he was conscious neither of a strange face nor a curious stare. The occupant of the driver's seat proved to be the mechanic who had driven for him prior to his trial and conviction; his "Good-morning, Mr. Coast," conveyed precisely the right degree of surprise and congratulation. In this, too, Coast recognized the hand of his lawyer. He was grateful, further, for the bumper containing an excellent cold lunch, as well as for the fact, which Warburton presently disclosed, that the affair of his release had been managed so swiftly and quietly that only the latest editions of that day's evening papers would contain the news.

"We tried to give you as much time as we could," Warburton told him. "Whatever your plans are, you'll be glad not to be mobbed before you get a chance to put 'em across."

Coast's swift smile was "revised" enough for the little man. He snuggled comfortably into his corner of the tonneau, the broad, convoluted curves of his plump face and figure radiating pride of conquest in addition to the honest delight he felt because of his client's deliverance.

To his client and friend the world rocked in a sea of emotions rediscovered. The sense of freedom, of space, of motion, the soft buffeting in his face of the clean, sweet, unpeppered air, the recognition of a new-born world—arot with color—vernal green, ineffable empyrean blue, flooding gold of sunlight—played upon his heart a muted melody.

Again he thanked his God his father and mother had not lived to know the day of his arrest.

He experienced a curious freak of memory, very suddenly seeing between him and the glorious world a fragment of a scene, his trial, exceedingly vivid; Blackstock groping a slow way toward the witness stand, his dark face the darker for an eyeshadow, his eyes marked shatteringly with smudged glasses.

Poor old Van Tuxil!

His nerves crawled with apprehension inspired by the city toward which the car was bearing him; the city of his birth and banishment; the city inexorable, inevitable, argue-eyed, peopled with its starting millions, racing with curiosity, whose apollite should long since have been glutt with details of his disgrace. He found appalling the thought of reentering it, of trying to take up his former life in its easy, ordered groove, of coming and going in the company of those in whose eyes his brow would be forever branded with the mark of Cain—yes, even though he were exonerated of the crime of which he had been accused, for which he had been placed on trial, convicted, and sentenced.

Would they ever learn to believe him guiltless, even though the truth were published broadcast, trumpeted from the house-tops? Would he not remain to them always the questionable hero of a sensational murder trial, whose escape from the electric chair had been due simply and solely to the exertions of his influential friends?

Exonerated!

The word was sweeter to him than the name of Freedom had been to his forebears in 1776 and 1861. He dared not breathe it—yet; he dared not hope for it nor even question whether or not it had been made his.

What if his release had been solely due to the offices of his friends, to pressure brought to bear upon the state executive? He felt that to discover such to be the case would prove insupportable. Death itself were preferable to life without vindication of the charge that had been laid against him.

So terribly he feared to learn the truth.

His friends, those who stood by him, those who had been silent, those who had denied him? What would be their reception of him now? He counted the names of a dozen of the dearest; did they believe in him, even now, in their secret hearts? Had they ever had absolute faith in his innocence, despite their protestations? Would he himself ever cease to doubt these—these?

Katherine Thaxter.

He had heard nothing of or from her since his conviction; before that, little enough; a note or two of halting sympathy, unheeded by a constable he had been afraid to analyze. Whether it had been due to belief in his guilt, or to a thing more dreadful in his understanding, he had never found the courage to debate, not even in the longest watches of the hopeless nights when he had lain in waking torment in his cell, listening to some miserable condemned wretch moaning in his sleep a door or two down the row.

His thoughts had swung the full circle. He ceased to think coherently. In time Warburton touched Coast's arm with a gentle hand. "Leash!" he queried, almost plaintively.

To Coast Coast smile once more was a keen delight.

When they had finished, Coast, refreshed and strengthened, diverted and calmed, boldly grasped the net-

"Well—" he asked with a steady glance of courage.

Warburton pounced nimbly upon his chance. "It's exonerated," he began, and consequently hit upon the word so squarely that he caught himself up with a gasp at Coast's reception of it. "Why?" he cried, alarmed. "You're white as a sheet, man! I said exonerated—full and clear!"

Coast reassured him with a gesture. "It's just joy," he explained simply. He put his head back against the cushions, closed his eyes and drew a long breath. "How was I to guess how all this had been brought about? I was afraid to ask, afraid to surmise, even. Tell me, please."

"It came—like thunder out of a clear sky, Garrett; none more amazed than I." Warburton reverted to the habit of clipped phrases that characterized his moments of excitement. "I suppose you know—you've seen the papers?"

"Only infrequently. I . . . was a bit cowardly about them, I presume."

"Then you hadn't heard about Blackstock?" Coast shook his head. "Well, his eyes went back on him—were falling during the trial, if you'll remember. I heard he'd injured them somehow—with his wireless experiments, you know. He went nearly blind and took himself out of the country—to Germany, the papers said, to consult a Berlin specialist, perhaps to undergo an operation."

was up. There he wanted to hedge, but his signature to the overnight confession took all the starch out of him, and he went all over it again, with a stenographer taking it down—written deposition—all that sort of thing.

"Meanwhile my friend the detective had ransacked Dundas' lodging—some cheap room just off the Bowery—and found a bundle of letters from Blackstock—mostly written during the trial, when they didn't dare be seen together—hints and orders as to the evidence Dundas was to give. That settled it. Dundas was rushed before a magistrate and jailed, and the grand jury was asked to indict him for perjury. The poor fellow was scared silly, as soon as he realized what he had done—declared Blackstock would get him sooner or later. So he saved him the trouble—killed himself in his cell half an hour after being committed—had a phial of morphine scooped in his clothing."

"After a pause Coast said slowly: 'So Blackstock did get him after all! That makes two at least—two we know of.'"

"Yes," Warburton assented uneasily, worried by the hard expression that lined Coast's mouth; "looked at that way, yes. Well, we called your trial judge into consultation—the district attorney and I—and between the three of us drew up a petition for your pardon, the district attorney being the first to sign. I got off to Albany by the first train. There wasn't the slightest trouble; the governor granted the pardon without a murmur."

"And here we are," Coast repeated in a whisper. He was quiet for a time. "You know I can't thank you, old man," he said at length, rousing Warburton's fat little hand rested a moment lightly upon his shoulder. "You don't have to. I feel too good about it myself. Always knew it would come out all right. Never lost faith in you, not for a second, Garrett."

He rattled on, Coast listening by fits and snatches. He heard a little of this matter and that, heard less of more. He replied at times abstractedly.

Katherine Thaxter! Had she heard? All Coast's thoughts focussed upon this: he must see her.

There came a pause, made awkward by a constraint in Warburton's manner. Coast glanced at him inquiringly. The little lawyer licked his lips nervously.

"There's one thing," he said, "you won't like, perhaps."

Coast smiled. "I'm not in a mood for fault-finding. What is it?"

"Of course, you know it's desirable to get Blackstock."

"Well!"

"You won't be fully cleared, in the public mind at least, until he's convicted in your stead."

"That's true enough."

"So we're keeping it quiet for the time being—the reasons for your release, I mean."

"Why? What's the sense of that?" Coast demanded, excitedly. "You said 'exonerated'."

"So it is, so it will be. But we don't want to scare Blackstock. If he hears that Dundas has confessed, he'll never be found. If we permit him to think, as the public will certainly think, that you are pardoned principally because of your social standing and 'pull'—then he won't be so wary. You see? So we're withholding the real reason. Be patient; it will only be for a little while. And in the end it will be exoneration, absolute and unquestionable. Will you stand for this?"

Coast nodded soberly at the dull haze hanging over the sweltering city toward which they raced. "I presume I must," he said wearily; "but it's hard—thundering hard. . . . I had hoped . . ."

"I know, old boy," Warburton's hand touched his again. "But it's for the best—for your best interests, believe me."

Coast's chin sank despondently upon his breast. "I must go away for a time," he said, or rather muttered, his accents so soft that Warburton failed to distinguish them—"clear out for a time."

They passed a corner news stand where a man stood with a paper outspread before him, the width of its front sheet occupied by headlines in huge black type, heralding the sensation of the hour.

They who rode might read: GARRETT COAST PARDONED! AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR!!!

Coast shivered as if chilled and sank back, crouching, faint with dismay, in his corner of the tonneau. Publicity had him in its relentless clutches.

At two in the afternoon the car stopped before the building on Nassau street in which Warburton had offices. Coast alighted, sick with fear of recognition. The sidewalk throng passed him with blank looks, the elevator boy had a copy of the blatant sheet and a stare for Mr. Warburton's client. In Warburton's private room there was business to distract him; papers to be signed, details to be arranged, letters and telegrams of congratulation, already coming in by the score, to be opened and read. He was called on the telephone—Warburton fully satisfying himself as to the caller's identity before turning the receiver over to Coast. His hope was nipped with disappointment; it was merely Trux's call. He heard a little of this matter and that, heard less of more. He replied at times abstractedly.

Katherine Thaxter! Had she heard? All Coast's thoughts focussed upon this: he must see her.

There came a pause, made awkward by a constraint in Warburton's manner. Coast glanced at him inquiringly. The little lawyer licked his lips nervously.

"There's one thing," he said, "you won't like, perhaps."

Coast smiled. "I'm not in a mood for fault-finding. What is it?"

"Of course, you know it's desirable to get Blackstock."

"Well!"

"You won't be fully cleared, in the public mind at least, until he's convicted in your stead."

"That's true enough."

"So we're keeping it quiet for the time being—the reasons for your release, I mean."

"Why? What's the sense of that?" Coast demanded, excitedly. "You said 'exonerated'."

see? So we're withholding the real reason. Be patient; it will only be for a little while. And in the end it will be exoneration, absolute and unquestionable. Will you stand for this?"

considered plans. In his rooms, forgetful of his promise to telephone Warburton, he threw himself upon the bed to ponder the next move; and exhaustion, superinduced by excitement, overcame him almost immediately. For the better part of an hour he slept without stirring, and awakened in the end only to the shrilling, prolonged and not-to-be-denied-ringing of the telephone by the head of his bed.

Still a little stupid with sleep, he required a moment or two to grasp the import of the switchboard operator's advice, to the effect that a Mr. Cross, representing the Evening World, would like to see Mr. Brainerd West. The message was repeated in accents peremptory before he comprehended that he had been run to earth.

"Ask the gentleman to come up at once," he said, and, seizing his hat, left the room as soon as he had finished speaking.

Ascending a single flight of the stairway that wound round the elevator shaft, he waited until the car began to rise, then rang. As he had foreseen, it hesitated at the door below to discharge the newspaper man before coming up for him. As he stepped into the cage he pressed a dollar into the operator's palm.

"Down," he demanded; "ground floor. And don't stop for anybody."

A single minute later he was in the street. Haste being the prime essential of the situation, he dodged round the corner into Sixth avenue, walked a block uptown and turned through to Broadway.

There suddenly, as he paused at the upper end of Longacre square, doubting which way to turn, what to do, he quickened to sensibility of his solitude, and knew himself more utterly alone in that hour than ever he had been throughout his days.

A passing handsome pulled in to his signal. He entered, giving the address of Katherine Thaxter's home.

There was a crimson glare of sunset down the street when he alighted and paid his fare.

"Just in time," said Coast; "I was to come to tea today—I begged the privilege only yesterday."

He paused, silenced by a presentiment of the aspect of the house. At every window the shades were drawn level with the sills. The flight of brownstone steps, littered with wind-swept dust and debris, ran up to the heavy oaken door, light closed. The seal of a burglar-protective concern stared at him from a corner of one of the drawing-room windows. Only in the old-fashioned basement were there signs of life; the area-gateway stood open; a gas jet glimmered through sash-curtains.

HANDICAPPED.

This is the Case With Many Connellsville People.

Too many Connellsville citizens are handicapped with back pain. The unending pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters and liniments may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pain and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently.

The following statement should convince every Connellsville reader of their efficacy:

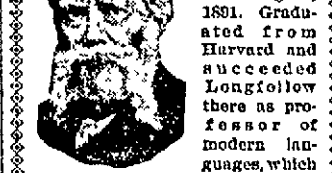

David Griffiths, 116 Pittsburg street, Scottsdale, Pa., says: "You are welcome to continue the publication of the statement I gave in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills in Oct. 1907. I am always glad to recommend this remedy. I had a constant pain across the small of my back and I was often so lame and sore that I could scarcely get about. The kidney secretions were sometimes profuse, then again scanty and distressing. Nothing helped me until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. I am grateful for the improvement this splendid medicine has made."
